About the Faculty

The Béla Bartók Faculty of Arts formerly known as Faculty of Music dates back to over 125 years and is the smallest faculty of the University of Szeged.

We are still internationally noted for our musical and teaching excellence and we have an outstanding reputation within Europe and we are one of the leading musical higher education institutions in Hungary. We are like a big family where the members of the Registry Office and the teaching staff act like mentors from day one. In addition to offering Preparatory Year Programme, Bachelor and Master programmes in Performance we are working on ensuring that our students get the best education, this is why 75 % of our programmes are practice oriented. We also offer some musical instruments for rent to make the life of our students easier. Being focused on bringing the best to our students, the Béla Bartók Faculty of Arts goes to great effort in bringing international concerts, masterclasses, competitions and festivals to Szeged. Our Faculty also offers many performance opportunities both on and off campus. You can get the chance to perform in the National Theatre of Szeged and in the famous Open Air Theatre of Szeged.

The Faculty is to be found in the heart of the town and the University Campus. Within 2 minutes walk you can find the University Library where you can study and broaden your knowledge. Relaxing and good food are just around the corner too with numerous pubs, cafes and restaurants nearby. Apart from the academic life here at our family like Faculty it is easy to make friends with whom you can enjoy the vivid cultural life offered by the city.
